

OPENING CEREMONY

Birmingham 2022 Commonwealth Games

28 JULY 2022

WITH OUR THANKS

THANK YOU AND CONGRATULATIONS

We've always been proud of our Birmingham roots. Now we're prouder still, having experienced how we all connected to put on the most magnificent show this great city has ever seen.

Our vision was to tell the story of how Birmingham has been enriched by generations of Commonwealth tradition. Seeing this story unfold through the many rehearsals, committed performance to dance, glorious set, lighting, sound, video, costume, props and production has been truly inspirational.

From the creative and tech teams to the logistics and business teams – with a veritable army of volunteers – the Birmingham and the West Midlands 2022 Commonwealth Games Opening Ceremony truly showcased the best of Birmingham and beyond.

Thank you for being part of this journey. Thank you creative, technical, operations, business, production, producing and broadcast for bringing this thrilling story to life. And thank you for sharing Birmingham's story with the world.

"There's never been a better moment for Birmingham to tell its story."

Steven Knight, Executive Producer

A STORY WORTH TELLING BIRMINGHAM: A COMMONWEALTH STORY

For the Birmingham 2022 Commonwealth Games Opening Ceremony, Artistic Director Iqbal Khan had a vision – to tell Birmingham's story as a pioneer of innovation, culture and diversity whose unique character has been enriched by Commonwealth influences.

STELLA AND THE DREAMERS: Our Eyes and Ears for the Journey

Iqbal and the creative team capture the city's heritage and its hope for the future through the eyes of our main character Stella. Like Birmingham itself, Stella is curious, compassionate and optimistic. She's accompanied by 71 Dreamers – one for each country participating in the Games – who embody the dreams and hopes of the city and the Commonwealth.

The Bards of Brum welcome Stella and the Dreamers to the city, where they meet both iconic and quirky characters from the past. During their journey, Stella and the Dreamers witness and reflect on Birmingham's many struggles and successes.

By intertwining drama, poetry, music, dance, and puppetry, Stella's journey with the Dreamers is a modern-day response to Birmingham's achievements and a herald of its bright future – which starts today with the 2022 Commonwealth Games.

COMING TOGETHER

From the moment rehearsals began, the energy and excitement amongst volunteers, cast and dance captains was electric. As music and choreography took shape, we added costumes, props, puppetry, lighting, and sound. It was a magical experience, culminating in this breathtaking show – one which embodied the Birmingham and Commonwealth spirit.

STELLA AND THE DREAMERS

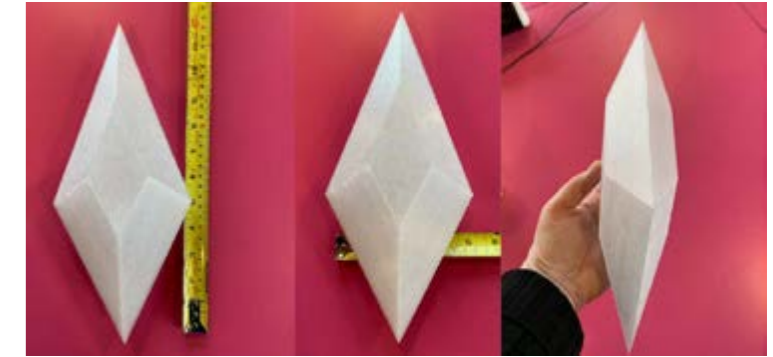

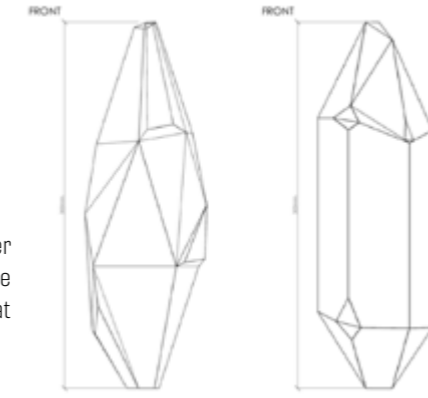

A BIRMINGHAM AND COMMONWEALTH STORY

CALL TO GATHER

This is Birmingham's call to Commonwealth nations.

To the beat of Sakara drums, the Call to Gather rises from Birmingham's Alexander Stadium and reaches every corner of the Commonwealth. Athletes from across the world respond to the call and collect their Shards, fragments of an exploded star that represents our common ancestry. Then, they prepare for their journey.

THE STORY BEHIND THE SHARDS

The Shards, as beacons of hopes and dreams, were inspired by a conversation with Kadar Abduhalli, a young refugee now studying in Birmingham.

When Kadar was in a Kenyan refugee camp, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) selected talented runners to train near Nairobi in a life-changing opportunity. Before an important selection race, Kadar was given a baton, into which he whispered his hopes and dreams for good luck and a better future. He went on to represent the Refugee Team at the World Athletics Championship in London, racing against his hero Sir Mo Farah in the 5,000 metres.

Based on Kadar's inspirational moment with his baton, The Shards hold the Commonwealth's whispered hopes and dreams for a better collective future.

THE QUEEN AND THE COMMONWEALTH

As athletes respond to the Call to Gather, the baton makes its way across the Commonwealth in a relay launched by The Queen.

The Red Arrows fly past, in tribute to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II in her Platinum Jubilee year. Head of the Commonwealth, she has a symbolic and unifying role in reinforcing the links joining people worldwide.

The baton relay is a Commonwealth Games tradition dating back to 1958. For the 2022 Games, the Queen placed her message in the baton before it started its journey from Buckingham Palace on 7th October 2021. The baton relay then covered all 72 Commonwealth nations before arriving in Birmingham for the Opening Ceremony.

EVERYTHING TO EVERYBODY

Stella and The Dreamers are welcomed to Birmingham by the Bards of Brum – guardians of history. They begin their journey of discovery – until disaster strikes.

We share their sense of awe as Stella and The Dreamers are greeted by the wonder of Birmingham's present and past.

Radical preacher George Dawson's civic vision was the inspiration behind Birmingham's first public library – and helped make Birmingham one of the world's most progressive cities. He helped found the Shakespeare Memorial Library in Birmingham's Central Library, becoming the world's largest publicly available Shakespeare collection. Unfortunately, the library building and most of the Shakespeare collection were destroyed in an 1879 fire.

Enter Charlie Chaplin, prankster and adopted Brummie on the scene. Full of mischief he recreates this catastrophe. When he accidentally sets the library on fire, Stella and the Dreamers extinguish the flames using their Shards.

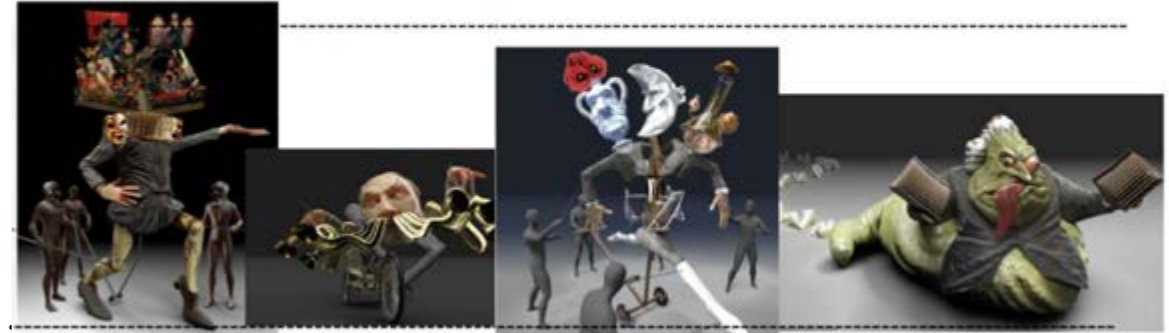

'Working with our brilliant Bards has been fantastic! Playful, inspired and a little mischievous, they're truly Birmingham's punkish pioneers.'

HEAR MY VOICE

This is an anthem to the unacknowledged and undervalued voices which have made Birmingham the city it is today.

The anthem recognises newcomers to Birmingham – the Irish who helped dig its famous canals, the immigrants who answered the post-war call to rebuild the city, and more recent arrivals from around the world. It also pays tribute to Birmingham’s pandemic heroes, including those working in education, health and social care, public transportation, supermarkets, and charities.

Hear My Voice is movingly sung by a volunteer choir and Birmingham stars Jacob Banks, Indigo Marshall, Soweto Kinch, and Black Sabbath guitarist Tony Iommi.

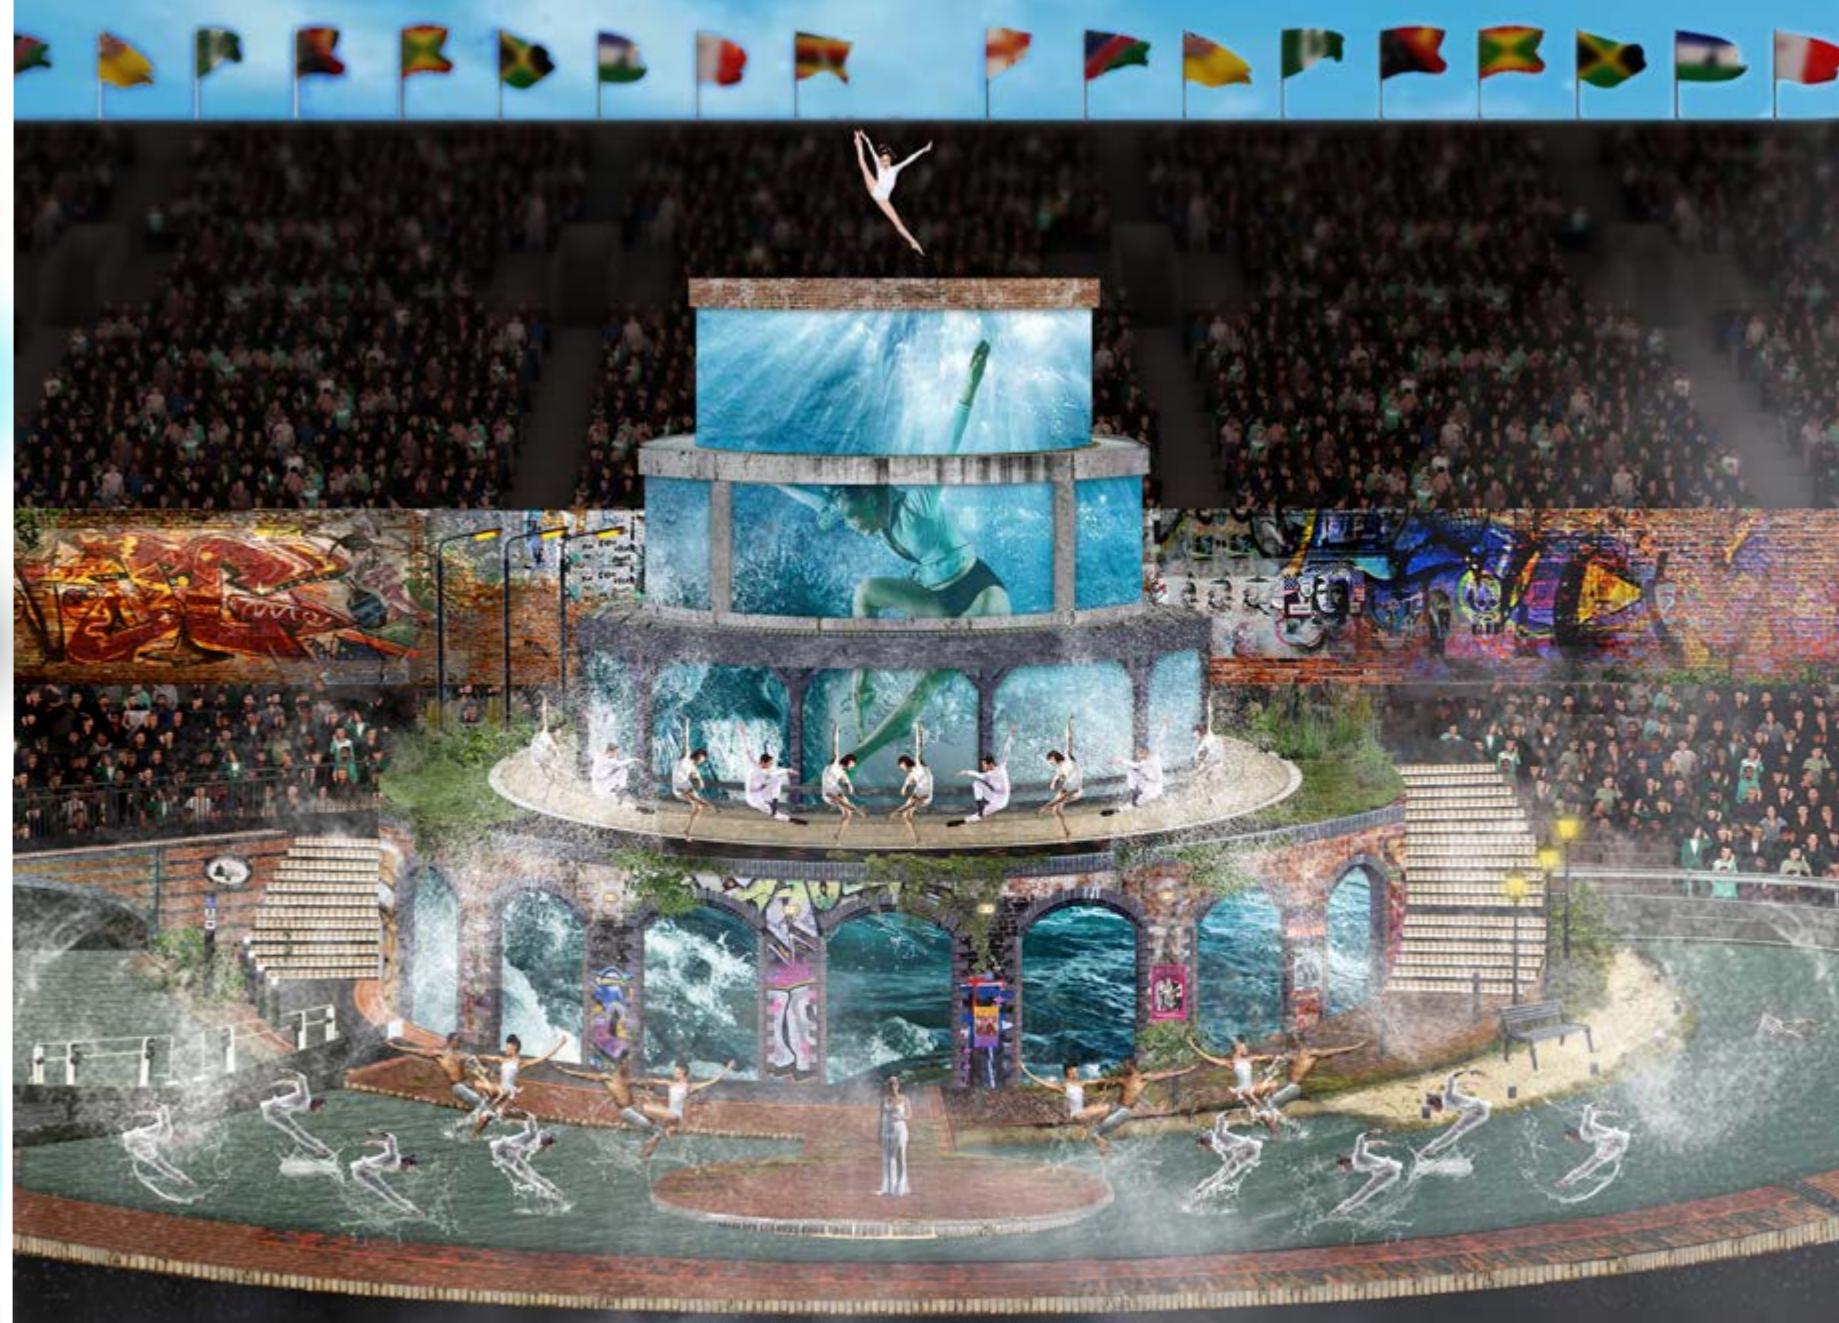

During the song, Stella and the Dreamers release books representing writers from the West Midlands and the Commonwealth, as well as popular classics from around the world. This triggers a Chorus of Flying Books, which cling to the library’s façade.

By the song’s end, the damaged library has been covered with flying books, symbolising its rejuvenation from both outside and within. The Library of Birmingham has now become a repository for new culture, voices, and experiences.

Birmingham Royal Ballet and Critical Mass then perform a unique ballet in a canal, signifying the cleansing and regenerative properties of water. Stella – and Birmingham – are now ready for a new beginning.

CARNIVAL OF FIRSTS AND THE BULLRING

Stella and The Dreamers learn about the role of Birmingham and the West Midlands as the heart of the Industrial Revolution. Birmingham was renowned as the City of a Thousand Trades, the Workshop of the World and the Toyshop of Europe.

Stella and The Dreamers experience this exciting, innovative time through a steam and industrial soundscape supported by percussive choreography.

They move on to the famous Bullring Market, which was established in the 12th century and became a traditional meeting place for speakers by the 1830s. Stella and The Dreamers are entranced by a parade of famous market characters from the 1940s to 1960s, like Percy Shurmer MP known as Miskin King, the 'Andy Carrier Lady, Little Jimmy Win, and Holy Joe. An array of floats then celebrates Birmingham Firsts – objects invented and made in Birmingham, and used worldwide. These include buttons, steel pen nibs, celluloid film, car horns and a printing press.

COLOUR REFERENCE

RAGING BULL

The Industrial Revolution had a dark side, too – as Stella and The Dreamers discover.

A frenetic drumbeat signifies industry's relentless, heartless underbelly as 50 female chain makers – known in the 19th century as the 'white slaves of England' due to their horrific working conditions – drag a heavily armoured bull into the bullring.

Scarred by past hurt and enraged by injustice, the bull breaks free and causes pandemonium. In a parallel act of emancipation, the women break their own chains.

Freed from their bonds, the women and the bull leave the shackles of the past behind.

Stella calms the bull and forges a friendship, helping it reclaim its courage, strength, nobility, and pride and heralding a new era of compassion and respect.

CULTURAL SYMPHONY

Stella and The Dreamers continue to learn about Birmingham's vibrant multiculturalism, and in doing so discover the importance of compassion and mutual respect.

The Cultural Symphony represents the many cultures and sounds that have found a home in this great city.

Stella and The Dreamers witness the energy and curiosity of different groups of dancers and musicians as they encounter each other and connect.

However, this diverse landscape isn't without dissonance as each group attempts to protect its unique heritage. Stella and The Dreamers watch as the groups clash, causing the bull to get hurt. They use their Shards to call for a moment of reflection and reconciliation.

Everyone then recognises the role they can play in Birmingham's transformation – creating a new harmony and a place for everyone. And that's when a new anthem for Birmingham and the Commonwealth is created.

"A lot of our stories and histories [are] actually hidden in the music."

Joshua 'RTKa!' Holness

ATHLETES ASSEMBLY

THE ORDER OF ASSEMBLY

Following tradition, the host nation of the previous Commonwealth Games always leads the procession. So Australia, host of the 2018 Games, is the first to enter Alexander Stadium.

The current host nation always enters last, meaning England is the final team to join the assembly. England will enter first in the 2026 Commonwealth Games, which will be held in Victoria, Australia.

GRAND FINALE – TURN THE PAGE

Stella, the Dreamers and the Bards of Brum, 'press' their Shards into the Tower, whereupon they rise and reform into our Star from the start of the show, signalling the birth of a new Commonwealth.

The regenerated orb embraces experiences from across Birmingham's past, present, and future. Stella and The Dreamers come together with everyone they've met along their journey – and celebrate the city's strength, resilience, and uniqueness.

And what better way to celebrate this grand finale than with Birmingham legends: the sensational Duran Duran.

WE ARE BIRMINGHAM. A COMMONWEALTH CITY.

"It's an extraordinary privilege to try to make the biggest statement you can make about the place [where] you were born – to create something that's a love letter, a celebration of Birmingham and the West Midlands."
